Salem Their Home.

J. E. Nast, wife, and two children arrived in Salem yesterday from Portland, Ore., and will make this city their future home. Mr. Nast is a photographer and will be associated with F. J. Caterlin.

His Family Ill.

The several members of J. E. Strayer's family, residing in this city are quite ill. The complaint, both from local causes. They all feel severe colds during the long trip across the continent, which, together with changes of air and water, has resulted in sickness.

He Fell Off.

Sunday night George Hatch, riding on the mail back from the depot to the post office, was thrown to the ground by a sudden turning of a corner and was badly bruised up—so badly indeed that he is unable to perform his duties as mail carrier.

The Capitals Getting Ready.

Work was commenced this morning by the Capital fire company to make quarters for their team in the building now occupied by them on the corner of State and Liberty streets. The partitions are being torn out and the stairs removed from the inside. They expect to have the arrangements completed this week and also to have their team selected.

No Little Attention.

A couple of gentlemen from Kansas arrived in the city yesterday, having in charge a couple of fine French Canadian stallions, one they have sent to Gervais and the other was on the streets this morning and quite a number of our citizens interested in stock were viewing the animal. It is pronounced by all to be a fine specimen.

A Close Shave.

The saw mill was the scene of another accident yesterday afternoon which might have proved more serious. George Emert and Colfax Hardenbrook attempted to put a belt on without stopping the machinery. As a result a belt on the pulley wheel caught the belt and twisted it up before the men could think what had happened. They were thrown violently across the room. Emert was hurt by the fall, and Hardenbrook came near losing an ear, that member having come in contact with some edged instrument in his flight across the room. It is needless to say the next belt they put on will be when the machinery is not in motion.

The River is High.

The rains the past forty-eight hours have caused the river to reach a stage of five feet three inches above low water mark, with the prospect of its reaching six feet before the rise ceases. This affords excellent boating and river men are happy. The Occident came up from Portland last evening having on board about sixty-four tons of merchandise for Salem. The lumber company now have considerable hopes of getting some logs to the mill here. The Three Sisters came up also last evening, having on board over sixty tons of freight for Salem. She was carrying the largest keel ever brought from Portland by her. The Hoag is now doing duty on the upper river and will remain there as long perhaps as the river continues navigable.

Capital Saloon Again.

Frank Starr was arrested last night on a warrant issued from Justice Goodell's court. Starr is charged with having committed larceny from person. The theft is said to have been committed at the Capital saloon yesterday evening, it being charged that Starr got away with some change which a drunken countryman had given him to handle. Starr's preliminary examination will be conducted at nine a. m. Thursday, and he has given bond in sum of $50 for his appearance at that time. While in jail this morning pending examination Starr was the recipient of a telegram calling him to Portland to meet the remains of his father who had died at Astoria yesterday. As soon as the bond was accepted, Starr left for Portland.

A LUCKLESS DITCH.

Suit Between the Salem and Stayton Companies Over Rights. In the United States district court at Portland the suit of the Salem capital flouring mill company against the Stayton water ditch and canal company was called yesterday for final hearing. The suit was brought at the instance of the Salem company to compel the Stayton company to vacate a certain ditch which was dug twenty-five years ago, which conducts the water supply of Salem from the Santiam river taken out at a point about twenty miles east of Salem near the town of Stayton.

This ditch, according to the story of an old settler in that vicinity, has a history that is not without some show of interest. About thirty years ago an immigrant by the name of Stayton settled in the woods of the Santiam, and tapping the river, ran a ditch to a point where he built a sawmill. In after years the Salem company took their water from this canal by tapping it and continuing another course to Salem. It is said that a dozen local fortunes have been spent in maintaining a dam across the river to throw sufficient water into the ditch, and that in the construction of this dam, and by reason of its existence, over twenty lives have been lost.

The man who first built the ditch and mill grew wealthy, but lost his wealth in the same business, and died poor. Several others contracted consumption on account of being in the water, and another owner lost both his legs and sold out his interest in the concern.

It is said that every man, almost, who has owned stock in this ditch and canal, has been bitten by misfortune from the day of his purchase till getting rid of the property.

A Gay Wife-Beater.

Among other relics of ancient days Salem has with her other possessions a wife-beater. His home is in the suburbs and only a few days ago the cries of his mate attracted the attention of neighbors and passers-by. He says his wife must obey him or suffer the consequences. As a result of her disobedience not long ago she ran to a neighbor's house and exhibited a great bump upon her head. She said he had knocked her down. This old fellow should be summarily dealt with for his cruelty.

Women of the Grange.

At the meeting of the last National Grange, a standing committee on woman's work in the grange was appointed. Mrs. S. L. Hayes of Oswego is a member of this committee. These ladies have been actively at work ever since in formulating plans and putting them into execution. Mrs. Hayes, for this coast, has been especially active and has carried on an immense correspondence. As special helpers in the work she has appointed assistants in each county. For Marion she has Mrs. John Minto.

They Have Arrived.

In speaking of fine new spring stocks of goods it would not do to omit mentioning that of the Capital Adventure Company. This firm, in the lead as always, is in receipt of the finest line of dry goods, clothing, dress goods, furnishings, shoes, etc., that have been brought to Salem for many days. They sell so cheap that all who see must purchase. Call on them and see for yourself.

Another Creamery Project.

Mr. Miller, an experienced cheese maker and manager of cheese factories from Oxford county, Canada, is in Salem and desires to put up a large cheese factory, provided he can secure a guarantee of the milk from a certain number of cows, for a period of five years. Farmers and other interested parties are invited to meet at the office of the Oregon land company, on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, April 27th, to consider the subject.

Faith in Salem's Future.

About three weeks ago a substantial citizen of Nebraska spent a few days in Salem and purchased some property here. To-day Messrs. Duncan & Booth are in receipt of a communication from him requesting them to forward him maps of Salem and vicinity as he would like to select other purchases. He seeks something well located and near town.

The Monmouth Normal.

This is a week of vacation for the senior class at the Monmouth normal school. Examinations have just been finished, and of the thirty-six members of the senior class all were successful and will receive diplomas save one. Several of the young lady members of the class are in Salem to-day.

C. W. Parker, resp. vs. The West Coast packing company, app.; appeal from Clatsop county; argued and submitted.

John M. Corbell, resp. vs. M. D. Childers, app.; appeal from Klamath county; argued and submitted.

OCCIDENTAL JOYFISHING.

The Gervais brass band is about to reorganize for the summer.

Her papers mourn the fact that there is not a building going up in Astoria.

A California farmer finds it profitable to raise pie melons for hogs. He secured sixty tons of melons per acre and his hogs thrived.

In Eastern Oregon sheep-shearing has begun with quite a number. The clip will be an unusually heavy one and of a quality superior to that of previous years. Wool is worth about fifteen cents per pound.

The Colton soap company is putting up a natural soap made from a clay taken from a mountain near San Jacinto. The clay is first ground into a fine powder and then mixed with other ingredients and formed into cakes the shape and size desired.

There is said to be a large body of sugar pine timber along the upper source of Rogue river, which seems to attract the attention of railroad men, and that parties have been along the river lately with chain and compass. There is much nice farming land up that way also.

Splendid specimens of marble, now being taken from the quarry near Roseburg, are of the most promising character. The development of such an industry means a great deal for that section, as the marble rivals in richness of color and quality the famous Tennessee marble.

There is an important awakening among the farmers of Washington county. By mutual assistance they propose greatly benefiting themselves and elevating the social, financial and commercial condition of agriculture in their immediate neighborhoods and throughout the state.

FOUR CONVICTS PARDONED.

The Governor Makes Free Men Out of Old Convicts.

Governor Penney has issued pardons for the following prisoners who will be set at liberty to-morrow noon: Milton Eddy, sent up from Baker county and sentenced for two years convicted of larceny. He is pardoned on the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney.

Lewis A. Steffens from Crook county sentenced for five years, convicted of stealing a horse. Pardoned because grave doubts as to his guilt exist, caused by subsequent affidavits establishing an alibi.

Louis Ribizinski, sent from Multnomah county for one year; pardoned on the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney.

Chas. Bassett, a Jackson county man, convicted of robbery, being armed with a dangerous weapon, sentenced eight years; pardoned upon the recommendation of the jury, who in their verdict asked the shortest sentence that could be imposed upon the accused.

The Minstrel Show.

Last night the opera house was one merry laugh from the rising of the curtain until its fall. The Good-year, Cook & Dillon company of minstrels give, as they claim, a refined minstrel performance. Many of their jokes were new and spicy, while their special features were of a high order of excellence. Mowett with the Indian clubs was perfection and grace personified. But no attempt can here be made to speak of the show other than collectively. The parts were all well sustained.

The World Against Her.

Last evening the grand opera house opened with the new play, "The World Against Her," by Frank Harvey. The play is a strong one, liberally flavored with the peculiar martyrdom of injured misery which affords scope for emotional talent.

Madge Carlton, the loyal wife and mother, who has fallen under the shadow of an uncommitted sin, is full of force and tenderness that appeal successfully to the audience.

New York News.

This play will be presented at the opera house next Saturday evening, the 27th, by the celebrated artists Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phoebe Davies. Lovers of the drama may expect a rare treat.

Registered Physicians.

The practicing physicians of Marion county are slow to register with the county clerk. They have only until Monday to perform their task, as the sixty days expire then and the law will be in force. After that time physicians who have failed to register will be required to pass an examination before the state medical board.

Two More Prisoners.

Lane county sent two convicts to the penitentiary this afternoon. They were Spud Murphy, sentenced to two years for burglary, and Thos. Eaton, one year for larceny.

Minto Bros. have leased said grounds for a period of ten years, and will soon commence the erection of a large, two-story frame stable, having one hundred stalls on the first floor and some twenty odd in the corral. They propose to make this one of the largest and most convenient stables in the state and one that Salem can well be proud of. The present quarters now occupied by them will be converted into a large hardware store, so a JOURNAL reporter was informed this evening.
